Coroner's Jury Weeps as She Tells of GIANTS PLAY A TIE. the Tragedy and What Led to It and Brings In a Remarkable Verdict.

Mrs. Madeline Langlotz was to-day exonehated by Coroner Harburker's jury of the killing of her father, Gustav Wasser, after he had killed his wife in her home, No. 2058 Third avenue, yesterday.

After a hearing into the deaths of the two Wassers the jurymen returned a verdict attributing Wasser's death to "parties unknown." They elso piaced the responsibility of the wife's murder on the dead man. The inquest followed a pathetic scene in Harlem Court when Magstrate House in tears held the woman to the Coroner against his will.

The shocking story of the dead father's brutality and the pitiful attempts of the family to evade his persecution turned the Coroner's jury to tears as they listened.

The little sister, Annie Wasser, aged though twelve years, who was the object of the Attorney Symonds, she said Annie the First Witness.

We were at breakfast, when suddenly saw my father standing beside us, his girl holding a revolver. He said: 'Is this to Germany?" My sister Madeline came room and told my mother and me to escape. We ran into the front room, pursued by my father. My sister telling Central to send the police. "I ran up the stairs, and as I looked shoot my mother. The bulle struck her in the centre of the breast.

In response to Attorney Michaelson' Is this to Germany?" she said that her sister had met him on the street a few days before and told him th mother was in Germany Madeline's Own Story.

Her brother bought the pistol with which she siew her father, she testilled, and had told her to fire it out the window to attract help if Wasser ever broke into their appartments. The blaze spread a small sort of panic started on the steamship Zeeland, which is in port getting ready to sail to-morrow.

Some of the passengers who had albroke into their apartments. Two days before the tragedy, she said, she had seen the father on the street near their home and had asked what he wanted its said, "I want my wife." Mrs. Langiotz said that she told him the Langlotz said that she told him the mother had gone to Germany. On the mother had gone to Germany. On the Mary home she said she stopped at the East One Hundred and Fourth street police station and complained, but that the Lieutenant had told her to run along and no one would harm her. All the next day they saw nothing of Wasser, but on the following morning, yesterday, he appeared in the dining from, athough the doors were locked. He had probably come through the scuttle. He pursued the mother with a revolver and shot her as the daughter was telephoning for police.
